1.0 INTRODUCTION

By letter dated February 1, 2024, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) requested Southern California Edison (SCE) to provide the results of the REC-1 Whitewater Boating Study: Level 1 Structured Interview Questionnaire. This information, in conjunction with other information from the Level 1 study—including the literature review, hydrology summary, and Project facility operation information—and the Level 2 study results reported by SCE in the REC-1 interim Technical Memorandum (SCE, 2023), will be used to evaluate progress and the potential need to modify the approved Study Plan regarding data collection approaches used in the Level 3 Intensive Study.

SCE proposed to complete a Level 3 Intensive Study in the Revised Study Plan (RSP) filing using the single flow survey and flow comparison survey approach (SCE, 2022). This approach follows a scientifically accepted method as described in Flows and Recreation: A Guide to Studies for River Professionals (Whittaker et al., 2005) to collect flow preference information and recreation use patterns on rivers where a controlled flow study is not possible and/or have unpredictable flow. In the Revised Study Plan (SCE, 2022), SCE committed to providing enhanced flow opportunities, when feasible, and to collect flow preferences based on boater knowledge gaps identified in Levels 1 and 2 of the study. Flow enhancements are discussed below as part of the Level 3 Intensive Study Implementation.

Refer to REC-1 Whitewater Boating Interim Technical Memorandum (SCE, 2023) for a description of the other Level 1 study methods, including a discussion on the development and deployment of the Structured Interview Questionnaire. The questionnaire and associated public outreach are provided as Appendix C and D to the REC-1 interim Technical Memorandum.

2.0 LEVEL 1 STRUCTURED INTERVIEW QUESTIONNAIRE DATA SUMMARY

SCE developed a Structured Interview Questionnaire for the whitewater boating community per the requirements of the FERC Study Plan Determination. The Structured Interview Questionnaire asked boaters about the individual whitewater segments from Fairview Dam to Riverside Park to document recreation use patterns, estimated boating flow ranges for each segment for respective watercraft, potential knowledge gaps about boating flows in the Fairview Dam Bypass Reach,[1] and flow information needs.

The Structured Interview Questionnaire was available to the public for over 14 weeks (May 5 through August 15, 2023). In total, 51 responses were documented; however, 1 response was an initial test of the survey by the study lead and was removed from the analysis, for a total of 50 responses. The following analysis of the Structured Interview Questionnaire responses documents the composition of the survey participants, whitewater recreation use patterns across river segments, estimated boating flow ranges for each segment for respective watercraft, potential knowledge gaps about boating flows in the bypass reach, and flow information needs.

The 50 respondents included a mix of genders, ages, and skill levels of the whitewater boating community on the North Fork Kern River (NFKR) (Table 2-1). Sixty-eight percent of the respondents were male. Fifty percent of the respondents self-identified as possessing advanced whitewater skills, while another 30 percent indicated they possessed expert whitewater skills. Most of the respondents were over age 40 (Figure 2-1), 8 percent were between the age of 20 to 29, and 18 percent were between the age of 30 to 39.

Thirty-four percent of the respondents' primary residence was in the Kernville area between Lake Isabella and Kernville (Figure 2-2). Los Angeles County and Orange County were represented by 14 percent and 10 percent of the respondents, respectively. Ninety-eight percent of the respondents indicated they recreate as non-commercial boaters on the NFKR, 22 percent indicated they work as commercial guides, and 22 percent indicated they operate in both capacities (Figure 2-3).

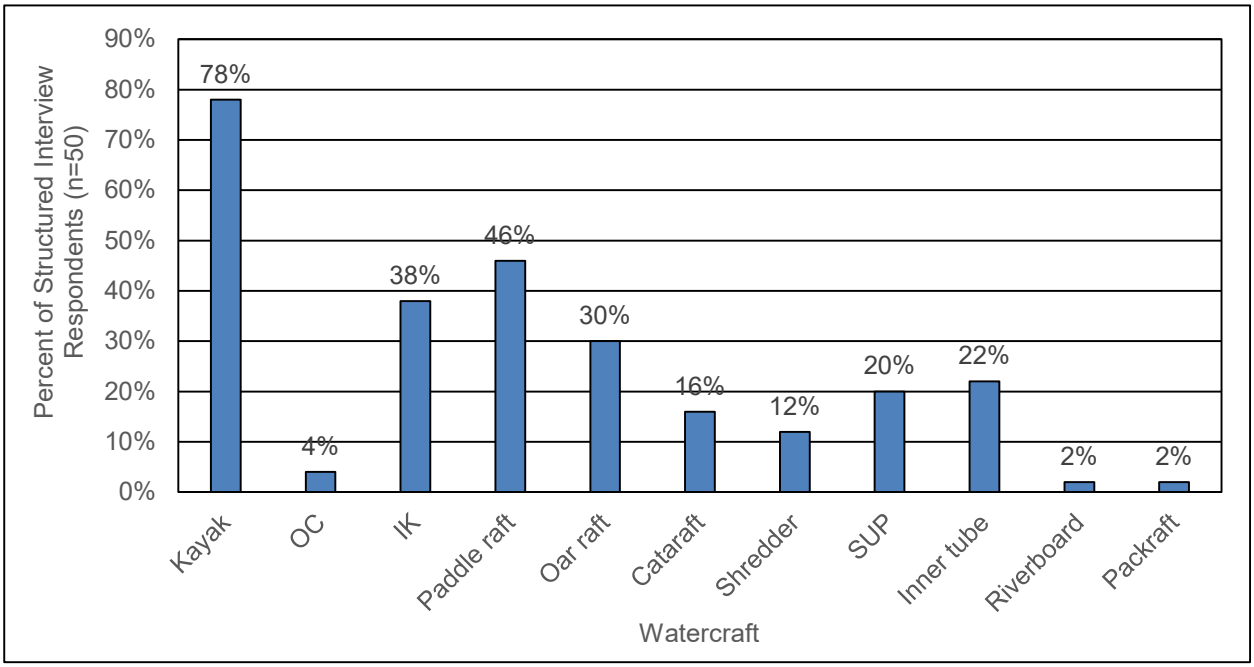
Structured Interview respondents use a variety of watercraft on the NFKR (Figure 2-4), with most respondents using more than one type. Kayaks were the most prevalent watercraft, used by 78 percent of respondents. Paddle rafts were used by 46 percent. Riverboards and packrafts were the least commonly used watercraft.



IK = inflatable kayak; OC = open canoe; SUP = standup paddleboard

When asked which watercraft they used most, respondents listed kayaks (68 percent) followed by paddle rafts (10 percent), inflatable kayaks (IKs) (6 percent), and standup paddleboards (SUPs) (6 percent) (Figure 2-5). No other watercraft types were identified by respondents for most often used.

The Structured Interview Questionnaire queried respondents on their recreation use patterns on the NFKR. More than half of respondents said they make more than 21 trips per year, and 8 percent of respondents said they make more than 100 trips per year (Figure 2-6). One respondent said their number of trips fluctuated annually depending on the type of water year and availability of whitewater opportunities on the NFKR. For the majority of respondents using kayaks, IKs, paddle rafts, and catarafts, trips are 3 to 4 hours long (Figure 2-7). Trips for some kayakers and paddle rafters are only 1 to 2 hours long, while trips for a smaller percentage (10 percent) of kayakers are 5 to 6 hours long. Respondents indicated that trips using SUPs and inner tubes were typically 1 to 2 hours long. Weekends are the most popular time to boat, followed by weekdays between 8 a.m. and 5 p.m. (Figure 2-8). Holiday weekends and holidays were also popular. The least popular time to boat was weekdays after 5 p.m.

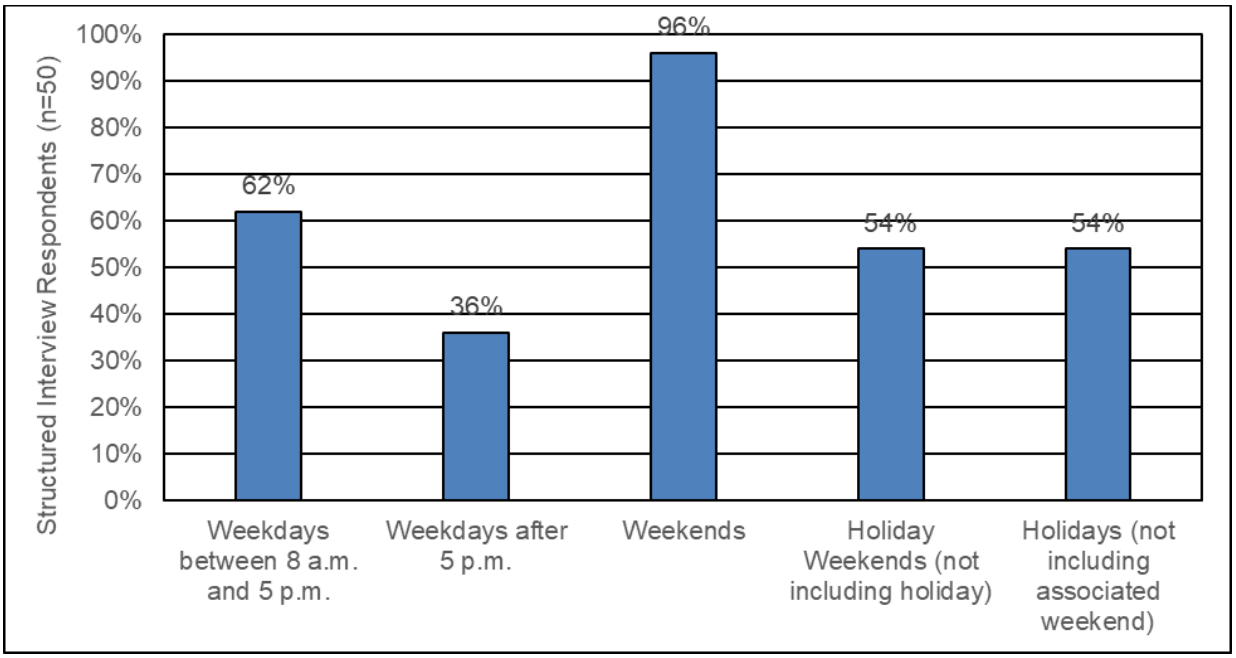

Figure 2-8. Days When Boaters Typically Take Trips on the NFKR.

Respondents cited a number of attributes that attracted them to the NFKR (Figure 2-9). The quality of the whitewater on the NFKR was highest among the respondents (96 percent), followed closely by river access (84 percent), spending time with friends (82 percent), diversity of whitewater segments (80 percent), landscape and scenery (76 percent), closest boating to where they live (70 percent), and whitewater difficulty (70 percent). The opportunity for camping was cited by 28 percent of respondents.

Respondents to the Structured Interview Questionnaire identified the river segments they boat on the NFKR (Figure 2-10). The nine river segments are as follows, from upstream to downstream:

1. Sidewinder / Bomb's Away (Sidewinder)
2. Fairview
3. Chamise Gorge (Chamise)
4. Salmon Falls
5. Goldledge / Ant Canyon (Goldledge)
6. Thunder Run
7. Camp 3 / Cables Run (Camp 3)
8. Riverkern Beach (Riverkern)
9. Powerhouse / Lickety Split (Powerhouse)

Respondents had the highest percentage of experience boating the Powerhouse, Riverkern, Camp 3, and Chamise river segments, with Fairview, Goldledge, and Thunder Run close behind. Respondents had the least experience boating the Sidewinder and Salmon Falls river segments. Analysis of responses by watercraft type indicates that respondents using kayaks, paddle rafts, and catarafts have experience on all nine river segments; respondents using IKs are limited to experience on six river segments; and respondents using SUPs are limited to experience on two river segments (Figure 2-11).

Structured Interview respondents were asked to list the river segments in order from their most favorite (1) to least favorite (9) (Figure 2-12). The median response for kayakers indicated Chamise was the favorite segment followed by a three-way tie between Goldledge, Thunder Run, and Camp 3. Fairview, Salmon Falls, and Powerhouse were in a three-way tie for least favorite river segment for kayakers. IKers identified Thunder Run and Camp 3 as their favorite river segments. Paddle rafters selected Thunder Run as their favorite river segment, followed by Camp 3. Salmon Falls was the least favorite river segment for paddle rafters. Catarafters identified Goldledge as their most favorite river segment, followed closely by Camp 3, Chamise and Thunder Run. Powerhouse was the least favorite river segment for catarafters. SUPers identified Riverkern and Powerhouse as their favorite river segments. SUPers did not rate any of the other river segments.

Choosing a river segment to boat on a given day is influenced by a number of variables that change on a regular basis. Some of these variables include discharge, watercraft type, skill level, boating group, weather, etc. Favorite river segments change as these variables change. The Structured Interview Questionnaire did not specify the conditions for the suite of variables for respondents listing their favorite river segments. Consequently, the responses to this question in the Structured Interview should be treated with caution. Nonetheless, the response provide insight on whitewater recreation use patterns by watercraft type across the nine river segments.

Respondents were asked to rate the whitewater difficulty for the nine individual river segments across four different flow ranges:

- 700 to 2,000 cubic feet per second (cfs)
- 2,000 to 3,500 cfs
- greater than 3,500 cfs
- less than 700 cfs

These increments were selected based on ranges listed in guidebooks and online river information pages, communication with boaters, and direct experience on the river segments.

For flows ranging from 700 to 2,000 cfs, the majority of respondents rated Chamise, Goldledge, and Camp 3 Class IV; Thunder Run Class V; and Fairview, Riverkern, and Powerhouse Class III (Figure 2-13).

For flows ranging from 2,000 to 3,500 cfs, most respondents were nearly equally divided between rating Chamise Class IV or Class V (Figure 2-14). Most respondents rated Goldledge and Camp 3 as Class IV and Thunder Run as Class V. A higher number of respondents were not sure what the whitewater difficulty of Fairview was at this flow range.

Copyright 2024 by Southern California Edison Company

For flows greater than 3,500 cfs, more respondents rated Chamise as Class V compared to lower flows (Figure 2-15). Respondents were nearly evenly split between Class IV and Class V for Goldledge at flows greater than 3,500 cfs. Responses for whitewater difficulty for Thunder Run were similar to the other flows, with the majority rating the segment Class V. The majority of respondents rated Camp 3 Class IV, but a small number of respondents rated it Class V. The whitewater difficulty rating for Riverkern and Powerhouse remained similar to the ratings at the other flows. Respondent uncertainty with the whitewater difficulty at Fairview increased yet again for flows greater than 3,500 cfs.

For flows less than 700 cfs, two-thirds of the respondents rated the whitewater difficulty for Chamise Class IV, while another third of the respondents rated it Class III (Figure 2-16). Respondents were nearly evenly split between Class III and Class IV for the Goldledge river segment. The majority of respondents decreased the whitewater difficulty on the Thunder Run to Class IV, Camp 3 to Class III, and nearly evenly distributed between Class II and III for Fairview, Riverkern, and Powerhouse.

Structured Interview respondents were asked to estimate their minimum acceptable and optimum flow preferences by watercraft type for the respective river segments. Respondent estimates of minimum acceptable flows were displayed on box whisker plots containing five descriptive statistics: median, 25 percent and 75 percent quartile ranges, minimum and maximum value (Figure 2-17). A single value is displayed on river segments where only one response was received for a watercraft type. The minimum acceptable flow estimates from respondents should be used with caution. Respondents provided estimates to an open-ended question. The information obtained from respondents should only be used to help develop flow ranges and associated flow increments for flow preference questions in the Level 3 comparative flow survey.

Kayakers were the highest number of respondents estimating the minimum acceptable flow for the individual river segments followed by rafters (combining paddle rafts and oar rafts). The lowest median minimum acceptable flow identified by kayakers was 300 cfs on the Chamise river segment. The minimum acceptable quartile range from 25 and 75 percent for kayakers on Chamise was 200 to 450 cfs. The minimum acceptable median for IKs on Chamise was 200 cfs. The minimum acceptable median for rafts and catarafts on Chamise was 700 and 725 cfs respectively. On the Goldledge river segment, the minimum acceptable median flow for kayakers was 500 cfs while the median for rafts and catarafts was 850 cfs and 750 cfs respectively. On the more difficult Thunder Run, the minimum acceptable median flow for kayakers was 600 cfs while the median for rafts and catarafts was 1,000 cfs and 950 cfs respectively. On the less difficult Fairview river segment, the minimum acceptable median flow for kayakers was 400 cfs while the median for rafts and catarafts was 550 cfs and 450 cfs respectively. On the Camp 3 river segment, the minimum acceptable median flow for kayakers was 600 cfs while the median for rafts and catarafts was 650 cfs respectively. The minimum acceptable median for SUP respondents on the Riverkern and Powerhouse river segments was 500 cfs.

For optimum flow estimates, respondents were encouraged to provide a flow range in their answer rather than a single flow number. Responses are displayed on box whisker plots for the optimum low and optimum high for each watercraft type for respective river segments. The box whisker plot for Sidewinder, Fairview, Chamise, and Salmon Falls is displayed in Figure 2-18. The box whisker plot for Goldledge, Thunder Run, Camp 3, and Riverkern is displayed in Figure 2-19. The box whisker plot for Powerhouse is displayed in Figure 2-20. Similar to the caution regarding the respondent estimates of the minimum acceptable flows, the respondent optimum flow estimates serve the purpose of helping guide development of flow ranges and flow increments for flow preference questions in the Level 3 flow comparison survey.

In Chamise, the median optimum low and optimum high flow for kayakers ranged from 750 cfs to 1,500 cfs. The median optimum low and optimum high flow for catarafts was 1,350 cfs and 3,100 cfs respectively. Rafters median optimum flow range was similar with 1,500 cfs and 2,500 cfs for a low and high respectively. In the Fairview river segment, the median optimum low and optimum high flow for kayakers ranged from 1,150 cfs to 2,000 cfs. The median optimum low and optimum high flow for rafts was 800 cfs and 1,250 cfs respectively. In the Goldledge river segment, the median optimum low and optimum high flow for kayakers ranged from 1,200 cfs to 2,000 cfs. The median optimum low and optimum high flow for catarafts was 1,500 cfs and 3,250 cfs respectively. Rafters median optimum flow range was similar with 1,500 cfs and 2,500 cfs for a low and high respectively. In the Thunder Run river segment, the median optimum low and optimum high flow for kayakers ranged from 1,000 cfs to 1,500 cfs. The median optimum low and optimum high flow for catarafts was 1,600 cfs and 3,350 cfs respectively. Rafters median optimum flow range was similar with 2,000 cfs and 3,750 cfs for a low and high respectively. In the Camp 3 river segment, the median optimum low and optimum high flow for kayakers ranged from 1,200 cfs to 3,400 cfs. The median optimum low and optimum high flow for catarafts was 2,000 cfs and 4,750 cfs respectively. Rafters median optimum flow range was similar with 1,250 cfs and 2,250 cfs for a low and high respectively. In the Powerhouse river segment, the median optimum low and optimum high flow for kayakers ranged from 1,200 cfs to 3,000 cfs. The median optimum low and optimum high flow for catarafts and rafts was 1,500 cfs and 3,000 cfs respectively. SUP median optimum flow range was 1,100 cfs and 1,800 cfs for a low and high respectively. IK median optimum flow range was 450 cfs and 3,400 cfs for a low and high respectively.

The Structured Interview Questionnaire asked respondents to identify where gaps exist in their experience or knowledge of flows on the NFKR. Some respondents provided a single number while others included a range. In some cases, respondents implied a range by using the “<” symbol followed by a flow number. For responses incorporating a “<” symbol, SCE inserted the minimum instream flow of 40 cfs. This is the lowest flow allowed in the license and is present for individuals to boat at some point during the calendar year. Inserting the 40 cfs value allows for the lowest flow that can be provided.

The knowledge gaps for Sidewinder, Fairview, Chamise and Salmon Falls for respective watercraft types are illustrated in a box whisker plot (Figure 2-21). The median knowledge gap at the high end for all watercraft types across the four river segments was less than 700 cfs. In the Fairview river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end for kayaks was 300 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 200 cfs. For rafts in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 550 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 375 cfs. In the Chamise river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end for kayaks was 175 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 130 cfs. For rafts in Chamise, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 700 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 550 cfs. The median knowledge gap at the low end for all watercraft types across the four river segments was 40 cfs. The latter reflects SCE's assignment of 40 cfs to any response that included a "<" symbol. Further communication will be necessary with the boating community to get clarification on the low end to distinguish between actual knowledge gaps for these river segments versus lack of interest in boating flows in the range of the minimum instream flows required in the FERC license.

The knowledge gaps for Goldledge, Thunder Run, Camp 3, and Riverkern for respective watercraft types are illustrated in a box whisker plot (Figure 2-22). Similar to the four segments upstream, the median knowledge gap at the high end for all watercraft types across these four river segments was less than 700 cfs with the exception of a riverboard respondent that specified a knowledge gap for flows less than or equal to 1,600 cfs in the Camp 3 and Riverkern segments. In the Goldledge river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end for kayaks was 500 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 450 cfs. For rafts in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 550 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 475 cfs. In the Thunder Run river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end for kayaks was 475 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 188 cfs. For rafts in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 700 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 600 cfs. In the Camp 3 river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end for kayaks was 500 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 275 cfs. For rafts in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 700 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 400 cfs. In the Riverkern river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end for kayaks was 300 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 175 cfs. For rafts in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 550 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 325 cfs. Similar to the four segments upstream, the median knowledge gap at the low end for all watercraft types for Goldledge, Thunder Run, Camp 3 and Riverkern was 40 cfs assigned by SCE where respondents implied a range but did not specify a lower number. Further communication will be necessary with the boating community to get clarification on the low end to distinguish between actual knowledge gaps for these river segments verses lack of interest in boating flows in the range of the minimum instream flows required in the FERC license.

The knowledge gaps for the Powerhouse river segment for respective watercraft types are illustrated in a box whisker plot (Figure 2-23). Similar to the eight segments upstream, the median knowledge gap at the high end for all watercraft types in the Powerhouse river segment was less than 700 cfs with the exception of a riverboard respondent that specified a knowledge gap for flows 800 cfs. For kayaks in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 300 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 238 cfs. For rafts in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 500 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 300 cfs. For IKs in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 150 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 125 cfs. For SUPs in this river segment, the median knowledge gap on the high end was 600 cfs and the 25 percent quartile range was 300 cfs. Similar to the eight segments upstream, the median knowledge gap at the low end for all watercraft types for the Powerhouse river segment was 40 cfs assigned by SCE where respondents implied a range but did not specify a lower number. Further communication will be necessary with the boating community to get clarification on the low end for knowledge gaps for this river segment.

Boaters use a number of information sources to determine the flow volume in the NFKR (Figure 2-24). Dreamflows was most used by respondents for all watercraft types, followed by the American Whitewater website and the SCE flow information website. Five respondents indicated they check flow information on the Sierra South whiteboard outside the store. Sixty-eight percent of respondents said the existing flow information sources meet their needs, while 8 percent said they do not (Figure 2-25). Respondents identified the following flow information improvements: add more gages and fix existing gauges to improve accuracy, provide 15-minute interval data, and forecast a power generation schedule for boaters outside the area to predict flow conditions below Fairview Dam.

The Structured Interview Questionnaire asked respondents to compare the whitewater opportunities on the NFKR in the bypass with other whitewater opportunities in the watershed as well as Southern and Northern California (Figure 2-26). Most respondents considered the bypass river segments either similar, better, or among the best. For Southern California, 48 percent of respondents considered the bypass river segments to be among the best whitewater opportunities.

3.0 LEVEL 3: INTENSIVE STUDY IMPLEMENTATION

In 2024, SCE will complete the following elements of the Level 3 Intensive Study:

- Analysis of the Level 3 whitewater single flow survey (data collected in 2023 and the analysis distributed to Stakeholders in Q1 2024 as an addendum to the REC-1 interim Technical Memorandum);
- Provide enhanced flows targeting knowledge gaps in boater experience on the river segments in the Fairview Dam Bypass Reach;
- Deploy a whitewater flow comparison survey;
- Conduct a whitewater focus group; and
- Complete a hydrology analysis to quantify the annual number of whitewater boating days using flow preference curves from Level 1, Level 2, and Level 3.

Based on the data collected in Levels 1 and 2, SCE will provide enhanced flows designed to target knowledge gaps in boating flows identified in the Level 1 Structured Interview Questionnaire (refer to Figures 2-21 through 2-23) and the Level 2 Limited Reconnaissance (discussion included as part of the SCE's Initial Study Report filing [SCE 2023]). SCE proposes four flow enhancements (Table 3-1), allowing study participants to boat and evaluate individual target flows and rate the quality of the boating opportunity.

Further communication with the boating community may be needed to help refine the proposed flow enhancements; in particular, the lowest target flow, the proposed flow increments, and the range of flows for enhancements. Because the flow enhancement targets are heavily influenced by unregulated inflow to Fairview Dam, the flows listed in Table 3-1 should be viewed as an approximate target range and not absolute discharge volumes. To provide the greatest operational flexibility and opportunity, SCE is preparing to provide flow enhancements during the spring run-off period (typically April into May). If needed, flow enhancement opportunities may also occur on the descending limb of the hydrograph later in the summer.

Study participants will also have an opportunity to complete a final flow comparison survey to evaluate the quality of boating opportunities across a range of flows previously identified in Levels 1 and 2. The flow evaluation data collected in the Level 3 Intensive Study will be used to develop flow preference curves for each watercraft type for the respective river segments.

Note:

SCE will work with the boating community to compile a list of potential study participants prior to implementing flow enhancements in spring 2024. Any interested boater may sign up to participate in the evaluation of the flow enhancements, and SCE will encourage participants that are representative of the broader boating community, including watercraft type, geographic locations, skill levels, age, and genders. However, full representation of the boating community may not be possible for all flow enhancement opportunities. SCE will use the list of interested boaters to establish communication protocols and directly communicate information about the flow enhancement schedule, as well as documentation and completion of a flow evaluation survey and other study logistics prior to a flow enhancement opportunity. Documentation of the outreach efforts will be included in the final Technical Memorandum.

1.0 BACKGROUND AND INTRODUCTION

On February 1, 2024, the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) issued a Request to File Study Results pertaining to the additional spot and calibration count data that Southern California Edison (SCE) collected, specifically that SCE provide a summary of the spot and calibration count data. Additional counts were conducted in lieu of using trail cameras to obtain recreation use data as part of the Recreation Facilities Use Assessment (REC-2) Study.[1] The data collected includes a diversified sample of days (week/weekend/holiday) and time of day to support an evaluation of recreation use and to estimate future recreation demand and needs within the Kern River No. 3 (KR3) Project Area.

The data described herein includes spot counts, calibration counts, and incidental recreation activity observations collected between April 1 through November 30, 2023, as follows:

- Spring 2023 (April 1 to May 26, 2023)
  - 1-hour calibration counts, spot counts, and visitor intercept survey days (4 days)
- Summer 2023 (Memorial Day weekend to Labor Day weekend[2])
  - 2-hour calibration counts and associated spot counts (9 days)
  - Spot counts associated with the visitor intercept survey days (10 days)
    - 1-hour calibration counts associated with visitor intercept survey days (5 days)
- Fall 2023 (September 5 to November 30, 2023)
  - 2-hour calibration counts and associated spot counts (6 days)
  - Spot counts associated with visitor intercept survey days (7 days)

[1] Per the request of the U.S. Forest Service (USFS) Sequoia National Forest (the owner of the recreation facilities), SCE did not deploy trail cameras to collect recreation use information, but rather used an alternative approach that included additional spot and calibration counts to collect recreation use data. This change in methodology was identified as a variance to the FERC-approved REC-2 Study Plan in SCE's Initial Study Report filed on October 9, 2023 (SCE, 2023).

[2] Holiday weekend refers to the 3-day weekend, including the observed weekday (Friday or Monday).

The year-long study effort to collect recreation use information was planned to continue through March 2024. However, SCE has extended the study field data collection effort through May 2024 because the March 2023 storm event caused road damage and recreation site closures, preventing SCE from collecting recreation use data at all of the site from the onset of the study. Upon completion of field data collection in May 2024, SCE will conduct the final analysis of all the data collected, which will be presented in the REC-2 Technical Memorandum as part of the Updated Study Report to be filed by October 11, 2024.

A brief description of the field methodology used to collect spot and calibration count data is included below. Refer to the REC-2 Recreation Facilities Use Assessment Interim Technical Memorandum (SCE, 2023) for a full description of the field methodology used at each of the 25 recreation facilities included within the Project study area.

2.0 DATA QUALITY ASSURANCE / QUALITY CONTROL (QA/QC) ANALYSIS

All field data and survey forms collected as part of this study are subject to a rigorous multi-step QA/QC protocol to validate the dataset that will be used in subsequent recreation use analyses. The QA/QC protocol involves a multi-stage approach to ensure the integrity and accuracy of the data as follows:

- QC1 focuses on the basic validation of counts.
- QC2_1 is a more detailed examination of the data to identify and address outliers or suspect values. Counts are examined to identify erroneously repeated data, questionable validity, or contain suspect information otherwise not captured.
- QC2_2 includes a cross check for further corrections, with a subsequent commitment to changes made.
- QC3a entails a double-check of notes and corrections, followed by final calculations and the removal of marked entries, as applicable.
- QC3b serves as the last cleaning stage before performing a final review in R Studio, which involves the removal of erroneous columns and notes and the transformation of calculations into values through copy/paste. In R Studio, the frequencies of all variables are reviewed and open-ended responses consolidated.

This systematic QA/QC protocol ensures the reliability and accuracy of the dataset for subsequent analysis. The QC3b datasets for the spot and calibration counts are included at the end of this attachment.

For the data presented in this memorandum, the QA/QC process identified the following:

- Of the 816 spot count surveys reviewed, 7 duplicates were dismissed for a total of 809 data points.
- Of the 475 calibration counts reviewed, 11 duplicates were dismissed for a total of 464 data points.

3.0 SPOT COUNT DATA

The spot count data collected provides a snap-shot of the number of vehicles observed at a study location at a point in time. This information collected at various times across multiple days during the survey period will be used to support calculations to estimate how many recreation days[3] occur seasonally by day type (i.e., weekday, weekend, holiday weekend).

FIELD METHODOLOGY

Vehicle spot counts were conducted at day use areas, dispersed camping areas, and trailhead locations. Upon arrival at these locations, the field technician roamed the parking area and counted the number of vehicles and people observed. Spot counts were also conducted at developed campgrounds and at day use sites adjacent to developed campgrounds. At these developed locations the field technician roamed the campground counting the number of sites that were occupied. If a campsite was occupied the site was counted as one vehicle for consistency within the dataset. Spot count data was collected in an electronic format using tablets and the data was uploaded to a database daily.

A copy of the spot count form was included as Appendix C of the REC-2 Interim Technical Memorandum (SCE, 2023).

Spot counts were conducted during both the calibration count days and visitor intercept survey days, for a total of 36 days between April 1 through November 30, 2023.

DATA SUMMARY

The summary of the vehicles counted during spot counts at each site from April 1 through November 30, 2023, are shown in Table B-1. Table B-1 is organized by season (spring, summer, fall) for each of the 36 survey days and lists the corresponding day of the week and the number of vehicles counted at each recreation site within the study area. The data are further organized by recreation site type (day use, dispersed camping, developed campground, day use site adjacent to developed campground, or trailhead) and individual recreation site.

The following is a brief summary of the data presented in Table B-1; however, the data is preliminary and will be updated after May 2024 once all the field data collection is completed. Between April and November 2023, a total of 4,115 vehicles were counted during the 36 spot counts.

- Spring: A total of 176 vehicles were counted. The Riverkern Beach (site 23) and Chico Flat Dispersed Camping (site 18) had the highest number of vehicles counted with 23 at each.
- Summer: A total of 3,373 vehicles were counted. The July 4 and Labor Day holiday weekends had the highest number of vehicles with 663 and 1,010, respectively. Dispersed camping sites had the greatest number of vehicles: Calkins Flat (site 8) with 569 vehicles counted; Springhill (site 14) with 361 vehicles counted; and Corral Creek (site 16) with 324 vehicles counted.
- Fall: A total of 566 vehicles were counted. The Johnsondale Bridge River Access (site 1) had the highest number of vehicles counted at 102.

[3] FERC defines a recreation day as being each visit by a person for recreational purposes during any portion of a 24-hour period.

4.0 CALIBRATION COUNT DATA

Calibration count data is used to collect information to determine trip length (turnover rate) at non-fee-based recreation site parking areas. This information was collected at each recreation site in the study area for one or two hours at various times of the day. This data will be used to support the estimation of the number of recreation days that occur at each recreation site in the study area during a given time period, specifically on a seasonal and day type basis (i.e., weekday, weekend, holiday weekend).

FIELD METHODOLOGY

During each calibration count, the field technician would arrive on site and count (1) all of the vehicles in the parking area at the start and end of the shift; (2) all vehicles that entered and exited the parking area; and (3) the number of persons observed per vehicle (when a group was seen and could be associated with a vehicle in the parking area). This information is used to determine the average vehicle trip length (turnover rate) at each recreation site and the average number of people per vehicle (or group size).

A copy of the calibration count form was included as Appendix D of the REC-2 interim Technical Memorandum (SCE, 2023). Data were collected in an electronic format and uploaded daily.

DATA SUMMARY

A summary of the average trip length and average group size observed during calibration counts at each recreation site[4] from April 1 through November 30, 2023, are shown in Table B-2 and Table B-3, respectively.

A total of 464 calibration counts were made on the 24 survey dates. The individual calibration counts were then totaled with an average trip length and average group size calculated for each recreation site on each survey day (Table B-2).

Table B-2 summarizes the average trip length for each recreation site, which is organized by recreation site type (day use, day use adjacent to developed campgrounds, dispersed camping, or trailhead). For vehicles that were on site at the start of the shift and were still on site at the end of the shift, the following assumptions for the trip length were made based on best professional judgment:

- Day Use Sites: 4 hours
- Dispersed Camping: 24 hours
- Trailheads: 6 hours

As shown on Table B-2, the preliminary data collected to date indicates that the average trip lengths were greater during the summer months as compared to the spring and fall months.

[4] Developed campgrounds were not included in calibration count data collection as the intent of a calibration count is to determine the site turn-over rate. Use at developed campgrounds will be analyzed based on actual use records kept by the USFS, once provided.

Copyright 2024 by Southern California Edison Company

The average group size was calculated based on the average number of people observed per vehicle for each site per day. The data is organized by recreation site type (day use, day use adjacent to developed campgrounds, dispersed camping, or trailhead) and is summarized in Table B-3. The preliminary data collected to date in the table shows that the average group size was greatest during the summer months as compared to the spring and fall months.

SPOT & CALIBRATION COUNT DATA ANALYSIS METHODOLOGY

The robust set of spot and calibration data (described above) will support the evaluation to characterize and estimate the current and future recreation use at recreation study locations per the REC-2 Recreation Facilities Use Assessment Study Plan. The spot and calibration count data will be analyzed to estimate recreation use at the non-fee-based recreation sites[5] using the following calculation (Pollock et al., 1994):

Average Vehicle Count (by Month and Day Type) (spot count data)

X Average Group Size (calibration count data, online survey data, and visitor intercept survey data)

X Recreation Day Length (12 hours assumed for day use and 24 hours assumed for overnight use)

X Number of Days in the Population (by Season and Day Type)

÷ Average Trip Length (turnover rate) (calibration count data, online survey data, and visitor intercept survey data)

= Estimated Number of Recreation Days (by Season and Day Type)

This analysis will be conducted following the field data collection efforts that will continue through May 2024 and the results of the analysis will be presented in the REC-2 Technical Memorandum.

5.0 RECREATION ACTIVITY SUMMARY

SCE also collected data on the number of people and the types of recreation activities observed during spot counts and calibration counts throughout the study season. During the 36 field days, 18,755 people were observed. Of those, the most popular activities observed were camping, picnicking, walking or hiking, sightseeing, boating, and fishing. Other activities observed include a mixture of recreation and non-recreation activities (e.g., using the restroom, taking photos, viewing scenery, asking for directions, and putting trash in the dumpster). Table B-4 summarizes the number of people observed to date participating in recreation activities at each recreation site within the study area during the spring, summer, and fall of 2023.

- Spring: A total of 765 recreationalists were observed, with boating, specifically at Riverkern Beach (site 23), being the activity with the highest number of observations with 121 people.

[5] Recreation use estimate at non-fee-based recreation sites (i.e., developed USFS campgrounds) will be estimated using registration/use-data from the USFS. SCE has requested actual registration/use-data from the USFS on Forest Service Concessionaire hosted campgrounds within the Project Area.

Copyright 2024 by Southern California Edison Company

- Summer: A total of 15,215 recreationalists were observed. Camping was the most popular activity observed with over 9,000 recorded individuals. The most popular camping locations were Corral Creek Dispersed Camping (site 16), Springhill Dispersed Camping (site 14), and Calkins Flat Dispersed Camping (site 8).
- Fall: A total of 2,775 recreationalists were observed, with camping being the most popular activity observed. Springhill Dispersed Camping (site 14) was the most popular with 314 people.

6.0 NEXT STEPS

SCE will continue to conduct additional spot and 2-hour calibration counts through May 2024.

Upon the completion of field data collection at the end of May 2024, SCE will complete the analysis of all the spot and calibration count data. Results of the analysis will be presented in the REC-2 Technical Memorandum as part of the Updated Study Report to be filed by October 11, 2024. Further, SCE will also be providing an interim Technical Memorandum that provides a data summary and recreation use estimates using the spot and calibration counts collected between April 1 through November 30, 2023 that will be distributed at the end of March 2024. Both the interim Technical Memorandum and the Final Technical Memorandum will present the results categorized by recreation site; site type; and activity based on weekday, weekend, holiday, morning, afternoon, or evening use, as well as seasonally.

The REC-2 Final Technical Memorandum will include: (1) a narrative report with tables and graphs displaying a summary of the online survey and visitor intercept survey responses, and (2) an analysis of the recreation use estimates, using the spot count and calibration count information, supplemental reservation information provided by the U.S. Forest Service (USFS) for the hosted campground locations (if available), and applicable information collected from the visitor intercept surveys and online user surveys. QA/QC procedures discussed in this memorandum will be extended to the complete data set.

Key:

Bold text indicates spot counts collected during the 2-hour calibration count dates. Normal or non-bold text indicate spot counts collected on the visitor intercept survey dates.
Orange highlights: sites where a portion of the site was closed and vehicles were counted at the day-use portion of the site.
Blue highlights: campground was closed for the season.
Yellow highlights: sites were temporarily closed as a result of extensive damage that occurred during the March 2023 storm and subsequent river flooding.

Pink highlights: sites not surveyed due to safety.
N/A: calibration counts were not conducted at developed campgrounds.
"-": data transfer error from field tablets into database. The missing data occurred 52 times at various locations during spot counts, or about 5.8% of the data set.
